RE: Speaking Invitation
San Diego State University
Institute on World Affairs
San Diego, California
Convenient Thursday, February-May 1989

Dr. George W. Bergstrom, Director of the Institute on World Affairs of San Diego State University (SDSU), has invited you to address a Thursday evening session of the Institute's Spring Semester program, on a Thursday of your choice from mid-February to mid-May 1989. Each session meets on the San Diego State campus 8:00-9:30 p.m. The suggested format is 40 minutes of remarks on your views of contemporary international affairs, followed by a question and answer period. The audience would include approximately 100 students, faculty, and guests. Since foreign nationals attend the university, you could expect some to be present.

The Institute on World Affairs was founded in 1942 to provide a forum for the discussion of current and authoritative interpretations of international affairs. Over the years the Institute has invited distinguished diplomats, government officials, academicians, and other specialists in foreign affairs to address the Thursday evening sessions. Last year, eight ambassadors spoke to the group. Other noted speakers have been Ralph Bunche, Hans Morgenthau, Alexander Kerensky, and Nobel Laureates Harold Urey, Linus Pauling, and Willard Libby.

Since you have already accepted five speaking invitations for next spring, I recommend that you decline this invitation. If you agree, a letter of regret is attached for your signature.

Dear Dr. Bergstrom:

I appreciate your invitation to address a Thursday evening session of the 47th annual San Diego State University Institute on World Affairs Spring Semester program. While I would like very much to meet with your group, my schedule is so heavily booked for the coming months that I cannot make another commitment at this time. However, I wish you and members of the Institute a very productive semester.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ William H. Webster

OCT 7 1988

Dear Judge Webster:

The Institute on World Affairs of San Diego State University begins its 47th year in the Spring of 1989. Throughout the past 46 years, a large number of distinguished diplomats, Nobel Laureates, academicians, military and government officials and other experts on world affairs have addressed the Institute on a wide range of international topics. The attached sheet provides you with the Institute's summarized history and additional details on logistical issues concerning our forthcoming session.

We are now arranging the schedule of speakers for the 47th annual Institute on World Affairs 1989 Spring Semester program. As your experience and considerable expertise in international affairs is familiar to us, we are most pleased to invite you to address a Thursday evening session of the Institute sometime during the period commencing with Thursday, 16 February 1989 and concluding on Thursday, 11 May 1989, excepting Thursday, 23 March 1989.

Should it be possible for you to speak to the 47th annual Institute in the 1989 Spring Semester, we would be very honoured indeed to learn of your agreement and the specific Thursday evening which would be convenient to you.

While looking forward to hearing from you concerning our invitation, I am,

Yours Sincerely

INSTITUTE ON WORLD AFFAIRS

Background

The INSTITUTE ON WORLD AFFAIRS at San Diego State University, which begins its 47th year in 1989, is the second oldest organization of its kind west of the Mississippi River. The purpose of the Institute today, as it always has been since it was founded in 1942, is to make available to the members of the SDSU community and the people of Southern California, a comprehensive forum in which the most current and authoritative interpretations of international affairs can be discussed. This purpose is accomplished by inviting distinguished authorities to address the Institute on issues of international import. In the Spring 1987 session alone, some eight ambassadors extraordinary and plenipotentiary spoke to separate sessions of the Institute. Other representative past speakers were Nobel Laureates Harold Urey, Linus Pauling and Willard Libby, individuals such as Hans Morgenthau, Ralph Bunche and Alexander Kerensky, as well as scores of diplomatic and governmental representatives from Europe, Asia, the Middle East, Africa and Latin America. During the Spring 1988 session, the Washington, D. C. stationed ambassadors of Sweden, Italy, Yemen and Belgium, the USAF Commander of the Pacific Air Forces, and others, spoke to the Institute.

The audience at the Institute consists of 100 plus attendees, made up of SDSU students and faculty, as well as special off-campus guests. Each session meets on campus in Nasatir Hall Auditorium-100 from 8:00 till 9:30 pm, on Thursday evening, from February through May. The speaker's address is normally about 40 minutes in length, covering a subject pertaining to his views on contemporary international affairs. The opportunity for the Institute audience to raise questions and ask for elaboration on points made by the speaker generally follows the scheduled address. The Institute normally hosts a dinner in honor of the speaker on the SDSU campus at Scripps Cottage, from 6:15 to 7:50 pm, directly before the speaker delivers his remarks to the Institute. Unfortunately, budgetary restrictions at present severely limit the Institute in its ability to provide air travel and accommodation costs to Institute speakers. For some two generations the Institute on World Affairs has actively functioned under its ancient Latin motto AUDIATUR ET ALTERA PARS*Let the Other Side Be Heard. As the nations of the world become increasingly interdependent, and the threat of near-instant nuclear destruction becomes progressively precarious, the necessity for this forum of international review and exchange becomes even more incandescently pressing and critical.
